

Travis Everette, DREI

Speaking Intro

More than two decades ago, a farmboy in North Carolina decided he wanted to play college football and be a doctor...the beginnings of a life story anyone could be proud of. But after attending the University of North Carolina, that farmboy realized he was as bad at medicine as he was at football. What he did excel at was talking and helping people . . . And so a real estate agent was born.

Now the owner of a successful real estate school, a national speaker, and the founder of a brokerage firm of over 120 agents, Travis really only wants to know one thing. What can he do today to help YOU succeed?